There are profound cognitive disagreements in the system basis of the study on the theory of intellectual property law, which manifest in the natural loss of the sense of meaning of intellectual property rights; in the transaction of basic principles of intellectual property rights, the loss of direction, the disagreements in the basic concepts; and the popularity of instrumentalism and so on. The generation of these disagreements is caused by both themselves and the reason of the time. The study on intellectual property rights should have scientific and rational security like proper epistemology and methodology. The complexity and the current research situation of intellectual property rights also show the necessity and importance of such complicated thinking as system science towards scientific and rational security. Intellectual property rights and system science are interdependent and homogeneous. The key to define the objects of intellectual property rights is to understand their nature correctly basing on the “relationship”. The nature of intellect as objects of property is “the orderly assembly of information”. The demand of creativity by the intellectual property system is inevitable, abrupt, and ought to be. The nature of private right of intellectual property rights can only be properly understood in an organic unity view.
