¿Quién soy yo para juzgarlos? (Spanish Edition) Sebastián Medina

Un joven maestro, católico y gay, que trabaja en un colegio concertado de ideario religioso, emprende un viaje grabando y transcribiendo consultas realizadas a decenas de sacerdotes de toda España en torno a su situación de pareja con una persona de su mismo sexo. El resultado revela, de una forma sorprendente, la impactante y radical división que genera la cuestión dentro del propio sacerdocio.

En el transcurso de esas conversaciones, se producen las declaraciones de impacto mundial del papa Francisco en relación con los homosexuales «¿Quién soy yo para juzgarlos?», reflexión que se incorpora al diálogo con los sacerdotes consultados y, en especial, a la entrevista con un destacado arzobispo que culmina esta combativa búsqueda de orientación y esperanza.

El resultado es un sorprendente y comprometido documento —a veces emocionante, a veces indignante, hilarante otras— que removerá conciencias, llamando al debate y a la reflexión dentro y fuera de la Iglesia. Las conversaciones conducen a todo tipo de discusiones políticas, sociales, sexuales... Desde sacerdotes que recomiendan medicación para curar la homosexualidad a otros que rechazan enérgicamente la postura oficial de la Iglesia. Dichas opiniones son reveladas sin censura en contextos y lugares emblemáticos como la ermita del Rocío, Las Tres Mil Viviendas de Sevilla, la Catedral de Santiago, la Semana Santa o la celebración del Orgullo Gay en Madrid.

Almudena Grandes, Boris Izaguirre, Evaristo Villar, Eduardo Mendicutti, Carla Antonelli y otras personalidades del mundo de la cultura, la teología, la política, el activismo y el asociacionismo colaboran en este proyecto invitando a la Iglesia a mirar de frente la realidad LGTBQ en España.
